The World's Largest Social Investment Conference for Asia Brings Philanthropists, Investors and Policymakers to Bali as an Official Side Event of the G20 Summit

- AVPN enables attendees to share knowledge, build strategic partnerships and increase the impact & flow of capital towards closing SDG financing gaps in Asia, after the pandemic slowed progress.
- The conference will be officially opened by His Excellency Joko Widodo, President of the Republic of Indonesia
- The Indonesian Ministry of Tourism and Creative Economy (MOTCE) is the host partner of AVPN Global Conference. AVPN is also an official Impact Partner for the Government of Indonesia in the lead up to the G20.

The AVPN Global Conference (20 – 24 June) will bring together some of the world's leading philanthropists, investors and policymakers to announce new alliances, launch new pooled funds, and form strategic partnerships to help Asian nations address the current shortfall in meeting the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). The output of this convening will be added to the main agenda of the G20 Summit so that concrete action will be taken to catalyse capital for greater impact in Asia. Asia Pacific holds 42% of global wealth, yet has increasing inequality and multidimensional poverty. With no Asian nation currently on target to meet the SDGs, AVPN—the world's largest network of social investors in Asia—is focused on bringing Asian voices centre stage at the upcoming G20 Summit in Indonesia. The conference will be officially opened by His Excellency Joko Widodo, President of the Republic of Indonesia and His Excellency Sandiaga Uno, Minister of Tourism & Creative Economy, whose Ministry is also the host partner for the event.

With 600+ diverse members across 33 markets, AVPN is in a unique position to connect Asian leaders to combine their capital, technical assistance, and policy influence to catalyse the capital of family offices, foundations and the private sector in Asia. The event aims to open a floodgate of urgently needed financing through innovative tools such as blended finance and pooled funds.

Over 1000 attendees will hear from high-profile philanthropists and business leaders; Chris Anderson, CEO of TED; Dato' Shahira Ahmed Bazari, Managing Director of Yayasan Hasanah; Jacqueline Novogratz, CEO & founder of Acumen; Robert Rosen, Director of the Gates Foundation; Shinta Kamdani, Sintesa Group, Dr. J. Satrijo Tanudjojo Global CEO Tanoto Foundation, Vidya Shah, Edelgive Foundation, Boon Heong Ng, Deputy Chief Executive Officer Temasek Trust, Jonathan Oppenheimer, Executive Chairman Oppenheimer Generations Foundation; Nicola Forrest Co-Founder of Minderoo Foundation; and many more.

"We are honoured to bring together so many high-profile leaders in philanthropy and social investment together," says AVPN CEO, Naina Batra. "Asian nations have young and highly adaptive populations and have shown they can grow quickly, but the pandemic has slowed progress in Asia more than any other region in the world. The AVPN Global Conference will bring together some of the best minds in climate, health, education, gender and Economic Opportunities, especially for youth, to help ensure that capital deployed across the region is fully catalysed for maximum impact."

The conference takes place against a backdrop of rising geopolitical tensions, exacerbated by the impacts of COVID-19 and climate change, with the livelihoods of women disproportionately affected. This is juxtaposed by Indonesia's acceleration towards being in the top 5 economies of the world, India fostering some of the fastest-growing cities on earth, and China lifting more than 770million people out of poverty since 1990. This juxtaposition, and the vast market gaps in booming sectors such as renewable energy and healthcare in Asia Pacific, are creating an unparalleled opportunity for social investors in Asia.

As an example, Elizabeth Yee, Executive Vice President, Program Strategy at The Rockefeller Foundation will talk about innovative solutions such as the Smart Power Initiative which has built viable and commercially oriented mini-grid ecosystems in India, Myanmar and Sub-Saharan Africa improving the lives of almost 500,000 people. Many initiatives will be announced at the conference, including new Philanthropic Funds which have been facilitated by AVPN to deploy unrestricted grants to impact organisations in Asia. Collectively, AVPN Philanthropic Funds have so far raised over USD11M across 8 funds in impact areas such as Health and Climate. During the conference, they will be announcing their biggest Pooled Fund to date, to support women's economic advancement and contribute towards strengthening gender equality across the region. Additional effort has been made this year to enhance the in-person networking experience, as the first physical event since the pandemic. Prior to COVID-19, tourism was the third-largest export industry, contributing more than 10% to the global GDP in 2019. As tourism returns, the presence of AVPN in Bali not only supports Indonesia's presidency of the G20, but also kindles the social and economic recovery of the island. The conference will include 10 keynote plenaries, and 48 breakout sessions, alongside working groups and private networking experiences with a focus on delivering actionable insights that will drive policymakers at the G20 Summit in November 2022.

The conference is supported by Rockefeller Foundation, Chandler Institute of Governance, Centre for Impact Investing and Practices (CIIP), Chevron Eurasia – Pacific Exploration and Production Company, Citi Foundation, Djarum Foundation, EdelGive Foundation, Investing in Women, Johnson & Johnson Foundation, Oppenheimer Generations Foundation, Schmidt Futures, SEI Asia, Skoll Foundation, Tanoto Foundation and more.

Acumen is changing the way the world tackles poverty by investing in businesses that improve the lives of the poor and leaders challenging the status quo.

Speaker: Jacqueline Novogratz

Quote: "The global system has become unequal to levels that are unproductive, immoral and dangerous. In every nation in which we work, there are rising tensions and divisions based on fear of one another. Exacerbating that is the climate catastrophe, which has disproportionately impacted the poor. And we are living with the lack of a consensus, and are having to navigate multiple and competing Truths to make sense of a world that can feel overwhelming. If ever there were time in history to bring together investors and philanthropists with vision and means to help address these problems, it is now."

Since its inception, EdelGive has supported over 166 NGOs across 167 districts in 17 states of India, influencing commitments of over USD 874 million in philanthropy.

Speaker: Naghma Mulla

Quote: "We believe that a siloed approach needs to transition towards collaborative efforts in order to combat and overcome varied social issues in the development sector. Such an involvement is important as the common aim is to create an ecosystem that increases the flow of funds to the grassroots organisations that not only work for with their respective communities, but also require support, to be able to do so at a large scale. Collective participation might help in mobilising greater amounts of funding, yielding a host of benefits such as knowledge-sharing and cross-learning. INVESTING IN WOMEN

SMART ECONOMICS

AN INITIATIVE OF THE AUSTRALIAN GOVERNMENT

Investing in Women, an initiative of the Australian Government, catalyses inclusive economic growth through women's economic empowerment in South East Asia. Investing in Women uses innovative approaches to improve women's economic participation as employees and as entrepreneurs in the Philippines, Indonesia, Vietnam and Myanmar through:

Workplace Gender Equality (WGE); Impact Investment for Women's SMEs and Influencing Gender Norms. In collaboration with corporations and business leaders, impact investors, entrepreneurs and advocates, we are working with those who are driving change for women's economic equality in our region.

Quote: "Women, much more so than men, face barriers to get the financing they need to grow their businesses. Studies show women-led companies get small proportions of venture funding, even though companies with at least one female founder perform significantly better than all male founder teams. Investing in Women is working to determine why women's SMEs have historically been overlooked for investment, and is working to change this. Investing in Women is partnering with impact investors to strengthen access to finance for women owned and led SMEs in Indonesia, the Philippines and Vietnam, and to build a business case for a more inclusive investing environment globally. By building a strong business case, we hope to give impact investors globally the confidence and the practical tools to invest in women's SMEs, increasing their access to investment financing."
